By Jocelyn R. Uy

RAISING THE BAR of public transparency under the Aquino administration, the Department of the Interior and Local Government (DILG) is laying itself open and accountable to its official website, including such crucial subjects for any government agency as finances, procurement and bidding transactions.

Interior Secretary Jesse Robredo yesterday said that giving online access to in-

Gov't calls in troops to avert water riots

After Mikey, Comelec set to OK Angie of 1-UTAK

By Kristian L. Alano and Dona Z. Pascual

ANGILO "KIKKI" REYES appears to be poised to follow Arroyo Miguel "Mikey" Arroyo into the House of Representatives.

Commissioner on Elections (Comelec) officials yesterday listed as much for Reyes, a former energy secretary, ally of former President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo, and nominee of the party-list transport group 1-UTAK.

Commissioner Nicomedes Ferrer said the poll body's second division, of which he is the presiding officer, had decided on the disqualification case filed against Reyes by Senator Guingo and Lisa Mesa, former representatives of the militant party-list groups Bayan Muna and Gabriela, respectively.

Ferrer declined to say how the voting went, saying the official copy of the decision was still "making the rounds" of the other members of the division, Commission Secretary Leticia Tigle and Elise Yacup.

When asked if the decision was similar to the second division's earlier decision on the disqualification case against Mikey Arroyo, now the representative of the party-list group ABTEA, he

DPWH says worst of shortage over

IT'S TIME to call in the Marines.

While claiming that the worst is over, Malacañang is deploying soldiers and civilian personnel to restore order and avert any riot in at least 177 barangays in Metro Manila now grappling with water shortage, officials said yesterday.

At least four hundred or roughly 2,000 soldiers from the National Capital Region Command will be tapped for the task as soon as the Department of Public Works and Highways gives the go-signal, the Armed Forces of the Philippines said.

In Camp Aguinaldo, Brig. Gen. Jose Malinao, the AFP spokesman, said the main task of the military during the rationing of water was to ensure that it was done in a peaceful and orderly manner and protect the security of residents, some already angry and desperate.

"We will just be involved in the security probably so as to let the people in these areas tell our push each other," Malinao said.

At a Malacañang briefing, Freddie Singson, Public Works secretary, said he did not expect riots to break out. "That's why we have anticipated and asked for warm bodies to put order," he said.

Some 1.22 million residents in the 177 barangays suffer from no water or have a water supply of only six hours, owing to the low water level of Angat Dam in Bulacan, the main source of water for the metropolis.

Most of them are in Calabarzon and Quezon cities, and Manila. Metro Manila has 12 million residents.

Manila Mayor Alfredo Lim said he preferred policemen to man water stations, but Mayor Herbert Bautista of Quezon City and John Jay Guingo of Navotas said they had no problem with soldiers.

"Before we use soldiers, let's utilize police forces. If the PNP (Philippine National Police) can't handle it, that's the time we ask for assistance," Lim, a veteran, said.

Court junks Trillanes plea to attend 1st Senate session

By Philip Morales

A MAGIST JUDGE has thrown out Sen. Antonio Trillanes IV's petition to attend the inaugural session of the 15th Congress, doubling the detained former Noy's bid to participate in a crucial vote for the Senate presidency.

In a four-page order signed on July 15, Judge Oscar Fuentetaja of the Manila Regional Trial Court Branch 348 said the Trillanes camp merely rehearsed arguments already rejected by the Supreme Court in a previous ruling.

Fuentetaja also cited the Philippine National Police's position opposing Trillanes' plea for temporary freedom. The PNP has said his attendance at the Senate session on July 20 "would involve more risks than usual" because it would be attended by a lot of people.

Trillanes' lawyers said they would ask the Manila court today to reconsider its ruling and allow the senator to have just an

The women who recommend Ultrashape

"A flatter tummy after the baby!"

People asked me, 'Dawn is this for real?' Of course only with Ultrashape! Before I was treated that I might not lose my post-baby bulge the second time around. But Ultrashape did not fail me. It helped me lose my stubborn fat. Look at me now. I love my flatter, slimmer belly. As long as there's Ultrashape, I'm confident keeping mine in shape!"

Dawn Zolucka (Singapore)

"25-inch waistline at 46 - one thing that I am most proud of."

And that's without surgery. Tummy tuck is not an option to me. So when I heard about Ultrashape as lipos without the suction, was able to plan! The first time I treated - I was nervous, but I was confident. As I grew older, I was insecure, my body became like a stranger, someone told me, 'You're so ugly.' Your tummy is so fat! If you want a slimmer tummy flattening treatment, there's only one solution - only Ultrashape!"

-Carmel Martin

More about Ultrashape - The Fat Overlayer

What is Ultrashape?

Ultrashape is a non-surgical, non-invasive fat reduction treatment. It works by locating ultrasound waves that break down the fat cells in the targeted area to break up lipids. Ultrashape fat cells are destroyed, they are absorbed from the body.

-HUNGARIAN

What results can women get from Ultrashape?

It reduces excess fat and improves the body contour. Low on heart rate, low on stress. It promotes a strong and sustainable energy delivery over the entire targeted area - increasing blood circulation, the common side effects of liposuction. No cuts, no pain or scars - you get a flatter, slimmer belly.

PRESIDENT AQUINO may decide to reveal the alleged irregularities in the previous administration that were uncovered by the new Cabinet when he delivers his State of the Nation Address (SONA) on Monday.

"There are concerns, and if at all, they will be divulged at the State of the Nation Address," Presidential Spokesperson Edwin Lacierda said yesterday.

Former Aquino Cabinet officials claimed to have discovered irregularities in certain government departments and were planning to submit a report about the state of each department as part of their report to the SONA.

Broad strokes

"I can only give you broad strokes. I cannot give you the details. Some of the departments have encountered some concerns and they also proposed some solutions to those problems," Lacierda told reporters.

Mr. Aquino himself has dropped hints about a supposedly anonymous deal involving a government agency to be very first in printing.

The President has ordered the creation of a task committee to look into the irregularities in the Aquino administration, and recommended the prosecution of erring former officials.

But in the main, Mr. Aquino will be reporting on the state of the economy and government revenues from the perspective of different departments, and outlining his legislative agenda in the SONA, Lacierda said.

"This is his first SONA. He

we're coming from the point of the previous administration. Looking back at what we are going to start the mission, and then our proposed solutions, and the President will advance his legislative agenda," he said.

According to Budget Secretary Florencio Alde, some P40 billion of the P1.54 trillion 2012 budget has been released until June 18.

Working day

Scott Collins, a member of the presidential communications group, said Mr. Aquino would reach out to the House and the Senate of Representatives in his SONA.

"It would be essential to maintain a dialogue with the Executive Department and Congress can work together," said Collins, a former editor-in-chief of the Manila Chronicle newspaper.

Monday, the day of the SONA, will be a working day, said Lacierda.

"It's a working day because this administration is not built to be closed by itself. We've just come abroad, so there's no time for our friends to meet in rallies. That's the reason why there's work they do," he said.

Lacierda said Malacañang was looking it up to the Philippine National Police to determine whether protesters would be allowed to stage rallies near the National Executive Complex in Quezon City.

PICPA MMR's Accountancy Week Celebration a Huge Success!

Reboot, Refresh, Restart...

On behalf of the Board of Accountancy, I would like to convey our warmest greetings and commendations to the organizers and participants of the Accountancy Week Celebration of the Philippine Institute of Certified Public Accountants (PICPA) Metro Manila Region, in celebration, July 18-24, 2010.

Your continuous theme, "Reboot, Refresh and Restart" is indeed very appropriate and timely. In this day and age, the world's economies what it used to be, with the advent of the New Economy, there are higher demands for efficiency, effectiveness, and competitiveness. With harder free business and state of the art communication as pillars of globalization, the pace of this change has never been this fast. This constant economic developments affecting the financial and corporate world calls for an accounting profession that is capable to respond to the needs of the times, to CPAs with a mission — that of being the business world's most trusted advisors, it becomes necessary for all of us to be professionally competent. Moreover, we must continue to pursue what's right with courage and dedication, strong sense of integrity, independence and integrity. As more often more of advancements come our way, we must learn to ride of the good and not of the bad. Making our modernization is the only way we could stay afloat and achieve the extraordinary. For PICPA to be effective, it must Reboot, Refresh and Restart. This celebration and gathering serve as a good venue for refreshing each company.

Please accept my best wishes for a fruitful and successful Accountancy Week Celebration!

Dr. Eugene E. Manzano

Board of Accountancy

Why does fellow accountants, PICPA? Congratulations for the successful celebration of the Accountancy Week July 18-24, 2010. It is heartwarming to see a great number of my fellow Directors and officers participated in the activities lined up in order of professional development, social involvement and sports.

The mission of the Accountancy Profession by 2010: A dynamic force towards national prosperity and sustainable global perspectives. The MMR PICPA cannot overlook to this vision, to this role to the Philippine public. We are being challenged to take part in the call for social transformation. Let us head the call and start from today at PICPA MMR.

I tender you to share my vision that: "ethics should be the linchpin to our goals, in our plans, in our actions for our fiscal year. Why not? Because accountability is what lies at the core of our profession."

Towards this end, we, as MMR PICPA, are going to take action in the following areas we have always considered: CRR, Professional Development, Advancing growth, Social involvement and administration.

We the MMR PICPA, will have to be at the forefront of business regulatory and technology changes to continuously provide the global competitiveness and international recognition.

Thank you and Best Power to PICPA MMR!

Thanksgiving Mass and Tree Planting at the La Mesa Ecopark

The PICPA MMR, started the Accountancy week by adopting 100 trees at the La Mesa Ecopark in pursuit of environment development, this has been a yearly event for MMR PICPA. For this year, it is not only the tree-planting activity staged here even the Thanksgiving Mass! What a refreshing toast to development and fellowship with colleagues and family, all in the profession. The group had lunch under the trees, and with family and friends.

The PICPA MMR into Professional Development

At the core of the PICPA MMR activities are professional development seminars. Last July 19, 2010 at the Grand Ballroom, Hotel Intercontinental Manila, Makati City, SOI Partner for Assurance, Ms. Josephine Adriano Abacia shared her insights on the Latest PFRS Updates, meanwhile, Mr. Reginald E. Nery Partner, Risk Advisory Services, KPMG, Maribel Samagustin & Co handled "Governance, Risk Management, Control and Compliance: Weaving them Together". Ms. Lillian S. Limangan, Partner & Division Head, Advisory Services Specialist, Pricewaterhouse & Atulio (PWA) discussed "The Signs of the Times - Operational Profit".

Induction and Oath Taking of the New Set of Directors

"I do solemnly pledge that I will assume all the duties and responsibilities of my position, that I will abide and uphold its Constitution and By-Laws, that I will contribute towards the attainment of its objectives, that I will serve the best interest of the Institute in particular and the accountancy profession in general."

I impose this obligation upon myself voluntarily, without mental reservation or purpose of evasion."

The Council Officers were inducted by the Presiding Justice Court of Tax Appeals, the Hon. Justice Ernesto D. Acosta.

Students' Participation

The PICPA MMR Chair's message during the Chapter sponsorship of Students' Participation: "One of the core value statements our Institute on social responsibility is to be a role model. We commit ourselves to a strong action and devoted sense of duty to society is very relevant since we put this into action, your presence today is an affirmation that social responsibility starts first with ourselves, involving you as students and me as CPA professionals, we have to do our share in keeping ourselves abreast with new developments in our profession to be globally competitive and it will be our way of helping our country to move, develop and attain the progress it deserves!"

Leak forces pipe closure

By Philip Marder

ON TOP of a water crisis, Metro Manila could soon face an oil shortage after the operator of the country's largest commercial pipeline shut the system down indefinitely, halting the delivery of processed petroleum products from oil refineries in Batangas to depots in Pasaden, Manila.

Ernest Imperial, pipeline right-of-way chief of First Philippine Industries Corp. (FPIC), yesterday said that pumping operations had been halted "in the meantime" due to an oil leak at West Texas, a 22-story condominium at the corner of Ortigas Highway and General Edil Wise Street in Baguio. Manila Times.

"We're shut it down because we're responding to the community's situation," he said yesterday. The other day, the City of New Orleans Coordinating Council declared the building a hot zone, describing it as a "boiling bomb that could explode at any time." (Q) has been stepping from an unidentified source in the coordination's) basement since July 12, preventing city officials in order an evacuation.

Seawater TDS personnel continued to make random checks of sections of the 117-in pipe system on Ontario Highway 4. A portion of the pipeline is located 1 ft across from the building.

FPIC: No leak in pipeline

"As of now, we can safely say that it's not coming from my pipeline," Imperio said.

Impure explained that different petroleum products like aviation fuel, diesel, kerosene and gasoline flow through the pipeline system at different times, ending up at the Ploiești depot.

Workers on doomed rig concerned about safety

WASHINGTON—A confidential survey of workers on the Deepwater Horizon in the weeks before the oil rig exploded showed that many of them were concerned about safety practices and feared reprisals if they reported mistakes or other problems.

In the survey, conducted by the rig's owner, Transocean, workers said that company plans were not carried out properly and that they "often saw unsafe behavior on the rig."

Some workers also raised concerns about poor equipment, including "vehicles they believed were in a state of disrepair," and taking "precautions" that were "not followed," according to the survey, one of two Transocean reports obtained by The New York Times.

"Sixteen years old, Deepwater Horizon has never been in dry dock," one worker said in an interview. "We can only work around it with."

"But it's break it, fix it," another worker said. "That's how they work."

According to a separate U.S. page equipment assessment also commissioned by Transocean, many key components including the blowout preventer were available before, had not been fully inspected since 2009, even though guidelines require its inspection every time it is put in operation.

The report cited at least 20 components and systems on the rig that were in "bad" or "poor" condition.

A spokesman for Transocean, who confirmed the existence of the reports, wrote in an e-mail that none of the 20 components on the rig found to be in poor condition were critical and that all elements of the blowout preventer had been inspected within the required time frame by its original manufacturer, Cameron.

The two reports are likely to broaden the discussion of blame for the April 20 explosion, which killed 11 workers and led to the shuttering of the offshore oil industry for months.

Together, those two reports paint a detailed picture of Transocean's upkeep of the rig, decisions-making and its personnel.

The first report focused on its "safety culture" and was commissioned by a division of Lloyd's Register Group, a maritime and risk-management organization that dispatched two investigators to inspect the rig March 12 through March 16. The second report, on the status of the rig's equipment, was produced by four investigators from a separate division of Lloyd's Register Group.

While the report detailed workers' concerns about safety and issues of reprisals, it did say that the rig was "relatively strong" in many of the key aspects of safety management, so the rig that only about half of the workers interviewed said they felt they could report unsafe behavior is a potentially "mixed" situation with both good and bad.

Nokor slams US sanctions, naval drills

BAKHA—Hanoi, Korea on Thursday (20) slammed US-South Korea naval exercises as a threat to global peace and US Secretary of State Hillary Clinton arrived in Vietnam for Asia Pacific security talks.

A spokesman for the North Korean delegation in Hanoi also slammed from US sanctions against the industrial conglomerate for its alleged sinking of a South Korean warship, saying they violated a UN statement on the incident.

"Such sanctions pose a great threat not only to the peace and stability of the Korean peninsula but also to global peace and security," the spokesman, Ri Song Il, said.

"If the US is truly concerned in the denuclearization of the Korean peninsula, it must take the lead in creating an atmosphere for dialogue," rather than, "imposing military measures or imposing sanctions."

The nuclear armed North has warned of war if it is provoked over the sinking of the Cheonan in the Yellow Sea in March by the loss of all lives, an incident that has sharply raised tensions on the peninsula.

The United States says to prevent such exercises, including an already existing, dozens, on and thousands of troops are "defensive" in nature and meant as a clear show of "deterrence" against North Korea's "aggression."

Clinton said the sanctions were designed to put pressure on the Pyongyang leader and were not aimed at the North Korean people, "who have suffered too long due to the misguided and malign policies of their government."

State Department officials said Clinton would ask Beijing to do more to influence its ally North Korea, during bilateral talks with China's Foreign Minister Yang Jiechi in Seoul later Thursday.

Her officials to Clinton's delegation said the meeting was not expected to take place until Friday, when the 17 member ASEAN Regional Forum (ARF) meets.

PRINCE ALBERT II and PRINCESS CHARLENE of Monaco.

Prince Albert II of Monaco to wed in July 2011

NICE, France—The crown prince of Monaco, Albert II, will marry his South African fiancée, Charlene Wittstock in July next year, the Mediterranean nation's royal house held announcements Thursday.

The couple will tie the knot in a civil ceremony on the palace on July 8 and then hold a religious ceremony the following day, a spokesman said.

Prince Albert is the 52-year-old son of the Prince Ranier III and the late Hollywood actress Grace Kelly and has ruled Monaco since 2006.

Wittstock is 20 years Albert's junior, an Olympic swimmer and a school teacher who met the prince in 2004 and has regularly supported Monaco, which since they attended the 2006 World Championships in Italy together.

World stocks fall on Bernanke economy view

Keppel posts 9.4% rise in 2nd quarter profit

SINGAPORE—Singapore's Keppel Corp., the world's largest maker of oil rigs, posted a better-than-expected 9.4 percent rise in quarterly earnings on its property unit helped offset a volatile oil-rigging market.

The global economy last year showed signs for optimism and the industry has seen under further pressure in the value of oil off oil in the Gulf of Mexico, which triggered a U.S. government intervention in September.

U.S. oil services company Halliburton last week reported an 83 percent jump in net profit, but warned the intervention would not sustain this year.

"The Gulf of Mexico oil spill has severely impacted some industry players to stop a unit and see whether or not they will be able to start up again," CEO Choo Choo Beng said in a statement.

He said the firm had estimated a number of bids for rig tenders by Brazil's national oil company earlier hopes to secure more orders.

Keppel, which generates about two-thirds of its income and gross earnings from offshore and marine business, said its net profit rose to 185 billion in 2010, versus 182 billion in the first quarter. It also said in 2010, it had 18,000 full-time employees.

BERNANKE—World stock markets also Thursday and the dollar fell, as investors by nerves about the global economy after Federal Reserve Chair Ben Bernanke warned the U.S. economy faces uncertain prospects.

Bernanke told a congressional committee that the economic outlook was "unusually uncertain" and the economy was fragile. He did not foresee that it would fall back into recession. The dollar dropped against the yen and the euro, reflecting optimism about America's economy the world's largest.

Some analysts worry that slowing economic growth in developed countries in the second half will also undermine Asia, which led recovery from the global recession.

"We're heading for the end of the year," said Tim Tan-Sing, a senior advisor at Capital Markets in Singapore. "We have a bleak economic outlook on the US and Europe, which has led to some stocks doing well in the market."

As trading got underway in Europe, Britain's FTSE 100 returned 0.2 percent, Germany's DAX fell 0.5 percent, and France's CAC-40 rose 0.4 percent. France's biggest gainers were bank stocks, with BNP Paribas up 0.1 percent, to 6.4 percent, to 15,915.00.

In Asia, Japan's Nikkei 225 stock average slipped 0.4 percent to 9,220.82 while South Korea's Kospi fell 0.5 percent to 1,730.05. Australia dropped 0.1 percent to 4,174.70 and markets in India, Thailand, Indonesia and Malaysia were also lower.

China's Shanghai benchmark index rose 1 percent to 3,362.41 on hopes of easing after several days of losses. Hong Kong's Hang Seng index gained 0.3 percent to 23,389.75.

Bernanke's comments sent the Dow Jones industrial average down 1.1 percent to 11,120.50 on Wednesday while the broader Standard & Poor's 500 index fell 1.3 percent to 1,099.50. Interest rates dropped in the Treasury market as to investors sought a safe haven.

In response, the dollar slipped to 86.40 yen from 86.00 yen in New York last Wednesday. The euro rose to 1.2856 from 1.2750.

Stockmarkets ended for Wednesday delivery was up 3 cents to 875.40 a barrel in electronic trading on the New York Mercantile Exchange. The contract fell 1.02 cents to 875.36 on Wednesday. AP

Chinese institutions said to face rising bad loans

BEIJING—CHINA's banks will face rising bad loans in the next few years as economic growth slows and local government investments relate to doing jobs to repay their debts, a global rating agency warned Thursday.

But the rise in non-performing loans will not cripple the Chinese banking system, with major lenders bullish about strong bottom lines and sufficient capitalization, Standard & Poor's said in a report.

"Overall, we believe that, despite the credit risks, China's banking industry is looking in reasonable shape," Standard & Poor's said, adding it would maintain a stable outlook for the sector.

Pearl River capital in bad states of a 9.6 billion yuan (1.4 billion dollar) lending blip in 2009, Beijing has set a 7.5 billion yuan loan target for the year and reinforced its intent to increase the amount of money they have in reserves.

Banking regulators have also clamped down on lending to local government companies, which have moved heavily during the financial crisis and hoarded much of the money into property development and infrastructure projects.

Lending to local government financing was accounts for 30-40 percent of total loans in the banking system, the S&P report said.

If 30 percent of these loans were to go bad, it could add 100 to 200 billion yuan to the equivalent of 400 billion dollars—in the non-performing loan ratio of the banking system, it said.

At the end of the second quarter, the national all banks in China stood at 1.2 percent, according to the nation's banking regulator.

The ratio was likely to stay below 10 percent until the end of 2012, the rating agency said, as major banks with all loans and local governments step in to bail out their investments vehicles. AP

DA and the local government (Part II)

By Brenda M. Chelmsworth

IN THE last two weeks, we had the opportunity to meet Agriculture Secretary Proceso Mada and Labor Government Secretary Juan R.

Both of them had indicated that the U.S. do have a crucial role to play in environmental development.

The departments of agriculture and local government do not have the authority to hire or fire the LGAs, heads of the municipal government or the LG personnel (i.e., the provincial and municipal agriculture extension workers). Nevertheless, they may exert influence on the LGAs, which, because of the Local Government Code of the Philippines, now have the primary responsibility for agricultural development.

Two problems

Today, two static problems exist. The first is that several agricultural extension workers are not licensed as agriculturists, but are directed to advise non-agricultural parents licensed by unaccredited LSW boards. This is particularly true when the LSW board has little interest in agricultural issues.

Since he is the first the attorney in the compensation level of the extension workers and can even hire and fire them, the temptation to use these extension workers for other non-agricultural purposes is great.

The current position is that the UK, with its large 170 billion budget, the ment, often goes into municipalities with their construction of home care centers. It should be spent in a more quality.

ENTARY

From, Dr. [Name]

A model

"We do not have to reinvent the wheel, though we can always try to make the design."

In 2002, there was a grassroots movement to bring the DA, the UBLA and the UCRN closer together on the issue. A three-city workshop was conducted for such purpose so that the DA and the UBLA, with the support of UCRN, could agree on integrated and comprehensive provincial and municipal agricultural development strategies.

Recovery-related law

There continues to be suggestions by the ILO to once again have direct supervision over IFA agricultural extension workers, so that the latter actually do agricultural work instead of being diverted by the LGLs to perform other non-agricultural jobs.

While this issue is defensible, what we must not do is address the problem head-on.

We recommend that the new L34 and M343 locomotives, with full support from Freightliner Heavy Equipment, a Manufacturer of America that will clearly define their roles to achieve operational development. As we drive in 2001, but with an improved design, M343-BA-112 workhorses can also be close to such products. The emphasis will not only be safety among these three parties, but also integrated and comprehensive professional and municipal operations that should address the unique and unique challenges the human condition using particularly dynamic, constant, and safety.

These runs hunting towers will be activated to detect communications.

Aquino urged to stop PAL layoff

By Paula E. Hunsaville

AS AN INDEPENDENCE labor group representing 4.6 million transport sector employees, would have asked President Ramon "Nepom" Aguino III to stop Philippine Airlines (PAL) plan to lay off 3,000 of its workers.

In a letter also addressed to Labor Secretary Francisco Rodilla, the International Transportation Workers Union (ITW) said Aguino's intervention in the PAL issue would be to line up with his campaign promise to defend human values.

The dispute has arisen due to the apparent intention of the PNL management to implement mass dismissals and to contract new jobs being performed by foreign workers.

Debunking the myth 'customer is always right'

By Lito Borlongan-Abrera
Contributor

EVER HEARD of a client of an editing services firm who mailed her a memo in a manila envelope, demanding that the editor doing her revision agree and totally engaged the staff employees in a debate about how they should do their job?

Or a customer who constantly complains and refuses to accept any attempt to replace or repair a defective gadget?

They're the kind of customers who are shopping for a fight, rather than a service or a consultancy. And they're bad for business.

But smart customers always fight?

For from it, says James J. Mapes, author of Customer Service: The 100 Most Important Things You Need to Know to Succeed in the 21st Century, "the customer is always right."

"My wife isn't always right, my boss isn't always right, my brother isn't always right, so much so I have to admit it, I am not always right."

So, why is the myth of every-thing that is supposedly customer is in the field of business, should expect customer the customer is always right? What about the customer who is bigoted, abusive and rude? What about the customer who has the best of a client, attempting to take advantage at every turn?

he asks.

Mapes goes on to explain that with the relationship a business owner has with his or her customer, it's a commitment to engage, that partnership through the use of specific values. This definition of service includes regarding the dignity of the individual, fairness, honesty and compassion. If any of these values are absent, a business owner is not a business owner, it's just a transaction.

he says, however, that you must do everything within the frame of inquiry to serve the customer. "You must give 100 percent to satisfy the customer, but you should not let the customer take advantage of you," he says.

Mapes recommends a few guidelines to ensure that your customers are your partners.

1. Let the business owner know the beginning. Mapes says dealing with customers is often like dealing with children. "They will not know but they will push the limit. If the rules are set from the beginning, they are more likely to follow them," he explains.

2. Train your employees. Mapes says your people should be taught the basics of customer service, how to deal with difficult customers and good communication skills. "But, the real training your employees is being through an agreed-upon set of values in the workplace. Everyone should move in the same direction before you take the bold steps of holding the customer to the same values as you hold your employees," he explains.

3. Be selective about your customers. Mapes adds: Why are we selective about our employees and not our customers?

Being selective is different from 'targeting' your customers. One has to do with a profile of what products or services the customer needs from you, the other is directed at what kind of customer you want as a partner for up a line of products you want to market based on the value in your vision statement," he adds.

4. Educate your customers. "We educate and train our employees. Why not educate and train the difficult customer?" Mapes says this is similar to a spoiled child who has not been educated properly about good manners. "The truth is it's not the fault of the child—it's the fault of the parent. The child simply reflects the beliefs, attitudes and prejudices of his or her parents... and so, you may say 'yes, we would love to have you as a customer, but you have to also play by the rules of our business.'"

5. Always give your customers the benefit of the doubt. If the customer isn't a scoundrel, Mapes says, maybe there is something else going on. "Perhaps the customer has just had a spat with the spouse and is taking it out on you. Maybe the customer has just been ripped apart by his or her boss and is venting pent-up anger. It's up to you to decide if that is the relationship that you want," he adds.

6. Walk in the customer's shoes. "Even though we have the best of intentions, sometimes we miss the important details of customer service. So, you just have to assume the customer is always right. Maybe the first time and possibly the second time. And then you have to ask yourself the question: How desperate for business am I?" Mapes suggests.

Happy employees

And Schwartz, in his book The Customer Service: The 100 Most Important Things You Need to Know to Succeed in the 21st Century, says that if you have to also play by the rules of our business, you have to also play by the rules of our business. "The truth is it's not the fault of the child—it's the fault of the parent. The child simply reflects the beliefs, attitudes and prejudices of his or her parents... and so, you may say 'yes, we would love to have you as a customer, but you have to also play by the rules of our business.'" they will be happy at work. The employees who are happy at work give better customer service because they care more about what people, including customers, they have more energy they are happy (including they are not in a rush to get out of work), and they are more motivated," he says.

On the other hand, he says, when the company and customer agreement consistently side with customers instead of with employees, it sends a clear message that employees are not valued, that treating employees fairly is not important, that employees have no right to engage from customers, and that employees have to put up with everything from customers.

Remember

According to my business consultant Alexander Ryzhik, if employees think that management won't support them even when a customer is not of line, even the smallest problems can cause frustration. And this is the same for customers.

For this dashing legal eagle, classic threads and comfy shoes

BOBBIY LACOSTE is a graduate of the third Philippine president, Juan P. Laurel, like his grandfather and his father before him, he took up law. His grandfather was one to this University at a scholar by the American government. There, he was required to establish a school where one was to become the center of academic excellence in the far East. That was the Lyceum of the Philippines University (LPU).

Bobby's father, lawyer Jose, Antonio Laurel, a Harvard alumna, made the school grow. Bobby went on to take up Law as well, at Columbia University. Then, after 20 years in corporate and labor law, he decided to take over the ownership of these legal and become president of LPU.

THE WORKING CLASS

Rosa Maypan Sr., Contributor

This is a family with a lineage of honor, who were with grade the nation's "Service to the Nation" award. His father, Jose, was a "Diplomat" and "Gentleman for God and Country."

The young Bobby, now president of his class and vice president of the student council, as well as a member of the secret and society known as La Salle where he went for his elementary education. He went on to attend for high school and college. There he completed AB Economics, then went on to take up law at the University of the Philippines. He graduated Law for a few years and decided to take his Masters at Columbia Law School, in NYC. Columbia produced two American presidents—Franklin D. Roosevelt and Theodore Roosevelt. What members of the brotherhood are from CLS?

Bobby credits Columbia for his intellectual way of thinking from a policy perspective. Is it a good law? How can the law be improved?

As economist, he sharpened his character, all proceeding and business deal plans... skills that have allowed him to manage LPU with an even hand.

Bobby believes in inspiring his organization, using strong strategy and teamwork. Every member is involved in his belief, mutual respect in the team.

For his work at Lyceum, he was recently

"You have impressive fashion sense. What brands do you buy? Where do you buy them? And what influenced your style of dressing?"

I really don't have any favorite brands. If it looks good on me, that's that. I try brands. I would even go to the store to see if it's a thing to fashion. But I would say my style is basically classic.

Shows are different. They need to be comfortable. I go for brands such as Club House, and particularly like Nike.

Where you travel, how do you pack?

What are the items in your suitcase?

Nothing special, but clothes there are a must. For comfortable walking shoes. And, of course, my suitcase, a Coach MD Mark II, the best all-around suitcase I have ever used. Photography is my hobby.

Who in your family has the most fashion flair?

My daughter Roseanne, who is fashion-conscious for "Teen & Country" magazine. She's the most stylish in the family. She's doing great for me to show my wife and two daughters generally have the same eye, to keep them their wardrobe, even shoes.

How do you describe your parenting style?

I try to be both mother and a friend to my kids—two boys and two girls, from 20 down to 14 in age. I try to let my own reach in help me connect with them.

At Columbia, did you travel in the United States? What were your favorite leisure spots as a single man?

I had two close friends at Columbia, a Canadian and an Indian. It's amazing that all of these years, we continue to keep in touch. And they're becoming good friends with my wife Jo, who was with me in New York, taking up early childhood education subjects at Baruch and Yeshiva College. We got married in January 2005, to be-reave my first and second wives.

Are you a traveler? What are your favorite cuisines and eating places here and abroad?

I am a moderate foodie. While I enjoy gastronomic and culinary specialties, I also enjoy simple native dishes. Adulphus, such as dumplings in fish is a favorite.

Are you into gadgets and smart toys—cars, watches, etc.?

I do like cars, but I don't collect them. My first special car was a second-hand 1991 Honda Civic. I bought it in 1995. Now it's a 2005 Civic. As for toys, I like watches.

How do you maintain the respect of people around you, and when do you loosen up?

They know me. There's little for me to play, and I love to read books. I review for business. I have a sense of humor, and I had to change.

... "Whispering Sugar" initially makes her case for the ineptitude of Sugar who once more, as it should be pointed out, cannot take of him, young beauty with brains, looking 25 in the final days of the Presidential Campaign. "Whispering" is bound to be remembered for (possibly) overrated Julia's role in this fallacious. Moreover, Julia's mother's pride over her little son winning the presidency (the only child, with an even better than her own) is the last straw, and given to her by her mother's expectations, lead her to ending in tears and by the reality of an over-the-top victory who ends his with a divine spirit.

Thymus serpyllifolius is a low-growing, woody shrub about 1 meter tall. It has small, opposite, lanceolate leaves, and small, white, tubular flowers. The leaves are covered with a fine, white, downy covering. The flowers are small and white, and are arranged in small, dense clusters. The plant is native to the Mediterranean region and is widely distributed in Europe, North Africa, and Asia. It is a common garden plant and is often used as a ground cover. The plant is also used in traditional medicine for its anti-inflammatory and antispasmodic properties.

Wearing a Foundation from in primer does the trick for me. It prepares the skin for makeup, creating an even surface for making-to-afresh better. It also acts as an invisible layer that protects skin against environmental aggressors like harmful UV rays and pollution. Some even go as far as combining this with vitamin and antioxidant rich areas on the face. There are many kinds of primers to suit any skin type, so try the product first before buying.

Apply primer on your face after moisturizing and before putting on foundation, concentrating on areas which are prone to oiliness. Use some forehead, this is useful.

MICHA Magallon left the scene thought Cesar Montano, whose career she started for 21 years, would make their budding romance. "He may have humiliated," she says.

DID YOU KNOW...

THE 42nd Mayon of Philippine pageant will have its final screening of candidates tomorrow at Resorts World Manila, where the coronation night will also be held on Aug. 28. This year's competition has a female-dominated executive committee led by former Miss Universe and Top Formosa. The pageant will be relevant on Sept. 3 via ABS-CBN. A 'complete deception'

By Philadel Concepcion

I DON'T want to have anything more to do with him. What he did was a complete deception," said Patricia Magallon in a phone interview Wednesday afternoon about her one-while partner, actor Cesar Montano.

The actress told the Inquirer that she at first wanted to keep her peace and that she had been avoiding the media. But she decided to tell it her, if only to clear the name.

Complete targets

She told Montano's leaving was better than ABS-CBN, by signing up with rival network GMA 7 last week had taken her completely by surprise. In fact, she added, the day before the actor signed the deal with the Kapamilya network, she was still an-pending a project for him, a movie with ABS-CBN's Ben Corona. "Montano is still the person who I love, I was heartbroken," she said. Magallon revealed that her romance with Montano in his talent manager was still in three after 21 years. She had no telling, she said, that he would even think of violating the agreement.

She said she and Montano signed the contract in 1990, "an extremely reasonable every year, on all both parties clearly in by mutual agreement."

(See related story on page F2.)

Magallon said Montano might have said that he wouldn't go to ABS-CBN's daily morning game show "Binibining" as a regular host. For the past several months, the show has been carrying on without its main host, Willie Revillame, who is on indefinite leave.

LEONARDO DiCaprio in 'The Truth About Leo'

The truth about Leo and his reported RP visit

LOS ANGELES—We recently asked Leonardo DiCaprio's publicist about the star's reported trip to the Philippines. This press agent said he didn't have any comment on this story. But added, "I'll definitely break out when we do."

Business close to Leonardo's camp told us privately that they were surprised—and concerned—about the various print stories coming out about the actor's visit to Manila. However, they did confirm that Leonardo, whose friendship with director Christopher Nolan, "Cap's friend," is shaping up to be both a commercial and critical hit, was coming to the Philippines.

When we interviewed Leonardo's father for his new memoir in the Philippines media, he talked about his passion for sustainable wildlife preservation and sustainable communities, which may explain why he is considering the Philippines as one of his next destinations.

Wildlife projects
"I love traveling," said Leonardo, one of the few actors who works off-Hollywood glitters. "I recently went to Nepal and India to do the first project with the World Wildlife Fund to save the last remaining tigers. There's doing a big launch for this. I get to go to the Philippines a month before that trip. When I am working, that's what I do. I have visited three destinations that I dreamed about visiting ever since I was a little boy, especially places known for wildlife and things like that. I love going along and learning about it."

When we pressed Leonardo as obsessed in the "Save the Tigris" project, he smiled and quipped, "When much do you want to know? I would go on. I would have the ball out of you." But he obliged.

"There are only 1,200 remaining wild tigers in the world," he began. "The objective is a very important one because there's a lot of species on the brink of extinction."

Sources close to the actor's camp express concern about print stories coming out about his Manila trip last. But this is a very compelling one because the tiger is a very mythical creature that everyone knows and can immediately identify with. The tiger isn't being poached and used for medicinal purposes all over Asia. If you get a lot of attention on this animal, like they did with the panda, you can then save their entire habitat and the animals that they live in and other animals that live in those jungles."

We couldn't ask "Is the rumor, it's not just a 'save the tiger' campaign...it's a 'save the jungle' campaign."

campaign. The Indonesian rain forest and jungle throughout all of Asia are being destroyed, cut down and not protected. The animals are being pushed to the brink to save this rare species, bring a lot of funding behind it, get the local communities involved to protect the animal, get more corporations to place and you can save these habitats."

How long did it take him to fly to the Philippines (where he spent a week and a half)? Leonardo simply explained, "It took 30 hours to get there, all on economy."

Manila disaster
Asked what else he would plan, and to whom about it, he said he had a lot of characters in "Inception," Leonardo answered: "The CEO of British Petroleum, to pay back the Gulf Coast for all the damage they've done to the environment. That's what I would inject. The oil spill is just a few characters. It's depressing and unbelievable. It's so incredible."

The environmental activist proudly said: "A lot of the actors (Inception) were really into the project. We had a meeting to go to with water power. I had a conversation about it with Matt Damon, who's the head of Warner Bros. The producers that we had on the set were all concerned by what was going to be a big conversation to do with the film every day, and we're making movies that everything in the world. We do a lot of things in the world that are relevant. We keep talking about this all the time, especially, happen around, with these small corporations that characters are, a much big movie to the house."
